

Ministry in Prayer

Session Guidelines and Waiver

To ensure your session begins with clear expectations and communication, the following guidelines have been provided. If you agree with the information presented here, please acknowledge your acceptance by initialing where space is provided and signing below.

When you come, be prepared to ask the Lord to search your heart. Be ready to address many issues the Lord may bring up not just the one you may think is the problem.

There is no guarantee that your time with a Ministry in Prayer team member will improve your life or your health, but hope it will improve your relationship with God and bring restoration.

During your session, you may be given suggestions for consideration, but you will not be told what to do and there will not be an attempt to "fix" you. Any true healing, deliverance and restoration comes from God, our facilitators are just assisting in the process. You will be encouraged to seek God for direction and guidance; however, you are responsible for your own life choices and decisions.

We will facilitate a safe and comfortable setting for introspection, confession of sins and prayer for deliverance from spiritual bondage. We will protect your private information and ensure confidentiality. We will teach from the Holy Bible and together we may discuss scriptures pertinent to your needs.

We will explore the deep wounds of the past and ask God to bring His divine healing and restoration to those places in your heart. Sometimes distressing and unresolved memories may surface during prayer ministry that may include high levels of emotional or physical sensations. Subsequent to ministry sessions, dreams, memories, flashbacks and feelings may surface. If this is the case, you may find your emotional state worsens before it improves. You will be encouraged to develop a strong support system to provide additional ministry aftercare and support which may include your church, a support group, trusted family and friends.
